NORFOLK.

Our Norfolk Correspondence.

NORFOLK, VA., April 29 1874.

Dear Recorder—The people of Norfolk are looking forward with high anticipations of enjoyment to the arrival of Ex.

Governor Vance who is expected to locate here before long, but on what day has not been announced. The movement was inaugurated by a committee of citizens and the Odd Fellows, both without concert of action, which is a compliment to your gallant countrymen, and on making this discovery they organized a joint committee of reception consisting of a number of our foremost citizens. On his ar-ival he will be received in a manner becoming his distinguished position and past services. I predict for him in advance a genuine oration.

Just now people are talking about General Kemper's letter, which the majority seem to think it would have been better for him to have kept in his portfolio. They are much gratified however, at the election of Mr. Hunter as State Treasurer in place of poor Mayo (who is a hopeless lunatic) and it is hoped the Legislature will enlarge the functions of his office beyond those at present prescribed by the existing laws. I have written you much in regard to the commercial prospects of Norfolk and Portsmouth, and in illustration of this let me tell you that to day we have two British steamers in port. One is sailing up with cotton, the other is taking in coal in addition the ship Laurens is taking in cotton at Portsmouth, just across the river. The bark Labrousse (English) is doing the same thing, and the Norwegian bark Mose is also taking in a cargo of what the lamented Timrod beautifully called "the snow of Southern Summers." After this statement the most incredulous will begin to believe with your correspondent that this port is rapidly growing in its commercial importance not only to Virginia but to North Carolina also.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,

Macon, Ga., and Philadelphia.

THE SEARCH FOR JOHN SMITH.

John Smith married my father's great uncle's eldest daughter, Melinda Byrne; consequently I was a relative to John.

John's family had often visited at our quiet country home, and at each visit had most cordially pressed us to return the compliment.

Last October, business called me suddenly to the city of B—, where our relative resided, and without having time to write or apprise them of my coming, I was intending to visit the family of Mr.

John Smith.

With my accustomed carelessness, I had left his precise address at home in my notebook, but I thought but little of it, I could easily find him, I thought to myself, as the cars set me down amid the smoke and bustle of—

I inquired for my relative of the first blackman I came across.

He looked at me with an ill suppressed grin. What was the fellow laughing at?

To be sure my clothes were not of the latest cut, and it is not just the thing for a young one out of the army to wear blue with bright buttons; but my coat was whole, and my aunt Betsy had sewed the bot-tons with whitening and soft soap until they shone like gold. I repeated my question with dignity:

"An you direct me to the residence of Mr. John Smith?"

"Mr. S-m-i-t-h?" he said slowly.

"Yes, sir, Mr. John Smith. He married my father's great uncle's eldest daughter, Melinda."

"I don't think I know a John Smith with a wife Melinda."

John Smith seemed to be a common name with him, from the peculiar tone he used in speaking of that individual.

"Ah!" remarked I, "then there is more than one of that name in the city!"

"I rather think there is."

"Very well, then, direct me the nearest."

"The nearest is in West street, second left hand corner—you will see the name on the door."

I paced on, congratulating myself on the cordial welcome I should receive from John and Melinda.

I soon reached the place—a handsome house with the name on silver door-plate;

I rang the bell—a servant appeared.

"Mr. Smith in?"

"No, sir, Mr. Smith is in the army."
